About

Surprise Gift Service is a virtual gift service for sending free online surprises with a personal message. It helps you wrap a note, eCard, or themed gift in a playful reveal that feels more special than a plain message. The app is built for quick sharing with friends, family, subscribers, or anyone you want to surprise, and it focuses on simple, free virtual gifts rather than physical delivery.

What is Surprise Gift Service

Surprise Gift Service is a virtual gift service from gifft.me that lets you send free online surprises with a message at the end of the reveal. The idea is simple: instead of sending service feel closer to a small celebration, whether you are marking a birthday, Valentine's Day, or just sending a cheerful note.

The site describes the app as a way to send virtual gifts to people you care about, and it emphasizes free online gifts, surprise gift messages, and online eCards. It also includes themed formats such as gift boxes and love letters, so the virtual gift service is not limited to one style of reveal.

Key features

This virtual gift service centers on quick, playful delivery rather than complex setup. Based on the site copy, the main options include:

- Gift box format for wrapping a message in a surprise package.
- Love letter format for a more personal, message-first reveal.
- Holiday and birthday themes such as Happy Birthday and Valentine-style gifting.
- Scratch-to-reveal and surprise-style gifts that turn the message into a mini quest.
- Personal message at the end so the surprise gift service still ends with your own words.
- Free virtual gifts and eCards with no subscription mentioned in the source material.
- Custom image choice: you can use your own photo or pick from the app's cute and fun images.

The site also references other gift styles such as special award, surprise egg, bubble wrap, and lovely turkey, which suggests the virtual gift service includes several playful templates for different moods and occasions.

How to use it

Using this virtual gift service appears to be straightforward and fast. The source material describes it as something you can create in just a few clicks.

1. Open the Surprise Gift Service site in your browser.
2. Choose a gift style such as a gift box or love letter.
3. Pick a theme that fits the occasion, like birthday or a general surprise.

- Write a personal message to appear at the end of the reveal.
- Share the finished virtual gift with the person you want to surprise.

If you are sending to a birthday guest, a partner, or a follower audience, the app's "Create new Gifft" flow appears to guide you through the process without requiring a subscription.

Who it is for

This virtual gift service is a good fit for people who want a lightweight way to send something warmer than a standard message. It is especially useful for:

- Friends and family members who like playful digital surprises.
- People sending birthday, Valentine's Day, or holiday greetings.
- Creators or subscribers who want a quick fan-facing surprise.
- Anyone who wants to send a free eCard instead of a physical present.
- Users who prefer a simple web-based gift maker over a more complex design tool.

Because the app is framed around free virtual gifts, it also suits users who want a no-cost option for occasional celebrations.

What to know before you use it

This virtual gift service is best understood as a fun digital greeting tool, not a full gifting platform. It does not appear to ship products, manage orders, or handle physical fulfillment. If you need delivery tracking, receipts, refunds, or retail checkout, you should use a commerce or shipping service instead.

The site copy suggests the app is web-based and centered on surprise messages, but it does not clearly document account requirements, export options, or advanced customization limits. That means you should expect a simple creation flow rather than a professional design suite.

It is also worth noting that the content on the site mixes playful language and broad claims, so exact usage limits are not clearly stated. For anything sensitive, such as official event invitations, legal notices, or business communication, a standard email tool or an official platform will usually be more reliable than a virtual gift service.

Even so, when your goal is to send a cheerful reveal instead of a plain note, this virtual gift service does the job well. It gives you a free way to wrap a message, choose a theme, and end with a personal touch through a virtual gift service that is built around surprise.
